Loyola Libraries Workshop Calendar: Fall 2016

For more information please email cud-ref@luc.edu or visit: http://libraries.luc.edu/classes/calendar

Election Research (VoxGov)

➢ Tuesday, September 27, 4:00pm – 4:30pm, Information Commons 120

VoxGov is an incredibly powerful aggregator of political information, combining legislative information, official press releases and even social media postings for the US government. This workshop will show how to use VoxGov for election research, how to learn what the candidates are saying, how it compares to their records and how to follow candidates in the long haul. Questions may be sent to Ben Aldred (baldred@luc.edu).

Election Research (VoxGov)

➢ Saturday, October 1, 4:00pm – 4:30pm, Information Commons 120

VoxGov is an incredibly powerful aggregator of political information, combining legislative information, official press releases and even social media postings for the US government. This workshop will show how to use VoxGov for election research, how to learn what the candidates are saying, how it compares to their records and how to follow candidates in the long haul. Questions may be sent to Ben Aldred (baldred@luc.edu).

PsycINFO: Introduction to Effective Searching

Also offered online, via Adobe Connect Tuesday, October 4, 4:00pm – 4:30pm

➢ Monday, October 3, 3:30pm – 4:00pm, Information Commons 120

Learn about PsycINFO, the premier database for psychology research. This session will provide a basic overview of PsycINFO search techniques. This workshop will be of most interest to those who are new to the PsycINFO database, but it may also provide a useful review for those wishing to update their PsycINFO search skills. Questions may be sent to Stephen Macksey (smackse@luc.edu).

Be a Webmaker

Also offered online, via Adobe Connect Thursday, October 6th, 3:30pm – 4:00pm

➢ Tuesday, October 4th, 3:30pm – 4:00pm, Information Commons 120

So you use the internet all the time, but do you ever make the internet? Get acquainted with Mozilla's Webmaker and learn the basics of HTML and CSS. Even if you are not interested in making websites this course will give you a better understanding of how the internet works and what you can do with it. Questions may be sent to Will Kent (wkent@luc.edu).

PsycINFO: Introduction to Effective Searching

➢ Tuesday, October 4, 4:00pm – 4:30pm, Online, via Adobe Connect:
   https://connect.luc.edu/library-workshop/

Learn about PsycINFO, the premier database for psychology research. This session will provide a basic overview of PsycINFO search techniques. This workshop will be of most interest to those who are new to the PsycINFO database, but it may also provide a useful review for those wishing to update their PsycINFO search skills. Questions may be sent to Stephen Macksey (smackse@luc.edu).

Digital Archive Collections

Also offered online, via Adobe Connect Wednesday, October 5, 4:00pm – 4:30pm

➢ Tuesday, October 4, 4:00pm – 4:30pm, Information Commons 120

The University Libraries provides access to a variety of online digital archive collections. These digital collections can be used to chart the history of a topic over time, to identify essential primary sources, and for basic data mining. Discover which collections are best suited to your research and learn advanced search techniques for finding and using information.   Please contact Niamh McGuigan (nmcguigan@luc.edu) with questions.

Become a Wikipedian

➢ Wednesday, October 5th, 3:30pm – 4:00pm, Information Commons 120

Join us for a class that will teach you how to contribute to Wikipedia. You will learn how to edit pages, start new ones, and leave meaningful comments on the most popular open access website on the internet. Questions may be sent to Will Kent (wkent@luc.edu).

Digital Archive Collections

➢ Wednesday, October 5, 4:00pm – 4:30pm, Online, via Adobe Connect:
https://connect.luc.edu/libraryinfo/

The University Libraries provides access to a variety of digital online collections. These digital collections can be used to chart the history of a topic over time, to identify essential primary sources, and for basic data mining. Discover which collections are best suited to your research and learn advanced search techniques for finding and using information.   Please contact Niamh McGuigan (nmcguigan@luc.edu) with questions.

Be a Webmaker

➢ Thursday, October 6th, 3:30pm – 4:00pm, Online, via Adobe Connect:
https://connect.luc.edu/libraryinfo/

So you use the internet all the time, but do you ever make the internet? Get acquainted with Mozilla's Webmaker and learn the basics of HTML and CSS. Even if you are not interested in making websites this course will give you a better understanding of how the internet works and what you can do with it. Questions may be sent to Will Kent (wkent@luc.edu).

Election Research (US Political Stats)

➢ Wednesday, October 12, 3:00pm – 3:30pm, Information Commons 120

Want to dig into statistical information for better election decisions, use US political stats! USPS has data on demographics, campaign finances and past election notes. This workshop will explore some of the useful policy data available in this powerful resource. Questions may be sent to Ben Aldred (baldred@luc.edu).

Public Health Data

Also offered online, via Adobe Connect Thursday, October 13, 4:30pm – 5:00pm

➢ Wednesday, October 12th, 4:30pm – 5:00pm, Information Commons 120

More and more governments, companies, and organizations are opening up their health data to the world. This session will explore some of the most useful online repositories with free health data. From there you can analyze, cite, and share the data for your research needs. Questions may be sent to Will Kent (wkent@luc.edu).

Digital Humanities Introduction
➢ Thursday, October 13th, 3:30pm – 4:00pm, Information Commons 120

If you love the humanities and technology, or if you're wondering how technology connects to the humanities, then this is the workshop for you. We'll learn about how technology and computing intersect with the humanities, and we'll discover exciting new projects and ways to get involved in digital humanities work. Questions may be sent to Will Kent (wkent@luc.edu).

JSTOR: Advanced Searching and Data Mining
➢ Thursday, October 13, 4:00pm – 4:30pm, Online, via Adobe Connect:
https://connect.luc.edu/libraryinfo/

You've probably used JSTOR to read articles online, but did you know that JSTOR has introduced new tools for searching and analyzing the JSTOR corpus? This workshop will teach you how to perform advanced searches in JSTOR and provide an introduction to Data for Research, JSTOR's new platform for data mining the JSTOR corpus. Please contact Niamh McGuigan (nmcguigan@luc.edu) with questions.

Public Health Data
➢ Thursday, October 13th, 4:30pm – 5:00pm, Online, via Adobe Connect:
https://connect.luc.edu/libraryinfo/

More and more governments, companies, and organizations are opening up their health data to the world. This session will explore some of the most useful online repositories with free health data. From there you can analyze, cite, and share the data for your research needs. Questions may be sent to Will Kent (wkent@luc.edu).

JSTOR: Advanced Searching and Data Mining
Also offered online, via Adobe Connect Thursday, October 13, 4:00pm – 4:30pm
➢ Monday, October 17, 4:00pm – 4:30pm, Information Commons 120

You've probably used JSTOR to read articles online, but did you know that JSTOR has introduced new tools for searching and analyzing the JSTOR corpus? This workshop will teach you how to perform advanced searches in JSTOR and provide an introduction to Data for Research, JSTOR's new platform for data mining the JSTOR corpus. Please contact Niamh McGuigan (nmcguigan@luc.edu) with questions.

Citation Management
➢ Tuesday, October 18th, 3:30pm – 4:00pm, Information Commons 120

Lost in a sea of citations? Are you interested in organizing them so you can easily insert them into your next great research paper? Take charge of your citations and come to this session to learn about RefWorks and Zotero, two citation management programs. Questions may be sent to Will Kent (wkent@luc.edu).

Be a Webmaker

Also offered online, via Adobe Connect Thursday, October 6th, 3:30pm – 4:00pm
  ➢ Wednesday, October 19th, 4:30pm – 5:00pm, Information Commons 120
So you use the internet all the time, but do you ever make the internet? Get acquainted with Mozilla's Webmaker and learn the basics of HTML and CSS. Even if you are not interested in making websites this course will give you a better understanding of how the internet works and what you can do with it. Questions may be sent to Will Kent (wkent@luc.edu).

Become a Wikipedian

  ➢ Thursday, October 20th, 3:00pm – 3:30pm, Information Commons 120
Join us for a class that will teach you how to contribute to Wikipedia. You will learn how to edit pages, start new ones, and leave meaningful comments on the most popular open access website on the internet. Questions may be sent to Will Kent (wkent@luc.edu).

Election Research (US Political Stats)

  ➢ Thursday, October 20, 4:00pm – 4:30pm, Information Commons 120
Want to dig into statistical information for better election decisions, use US political stats! USPS has data on demographics, campaign finances and past election notes. This workshop will explore some of the useful policy data available in this powerful resource. Questions may be sent to Ben Aldred (baldred@luc.edu).

Public Health Data

Also offered online, via Adobe Connect Thursday, October 13, 4:30pm – 5:00pm
  ➢ Thursday, October 25th, 3:00pm – 3:30pm, Information Commons 120
More and more governments, companies, and organizations are opening up their health data to the world. This session will explore some of the most useful online repositories with free health data. From there you can analyze, cite, and share the data for your research needs. Questions may be sent to Will Kent (wkent@luc.edu).

Digital Humanities Introduction

  ➢ Wednesday, October 26th, 2:00pm – 2:30pm, Information Commons 120
If you love the humanities and technology, or if you're wondering how technology connects to the humanities, then this is the workshop for you. We'll learn about how technology and computing intersect with the humanities, and we'll discover exciting new projects and ways to get involved in digital humanities work. Questions may be sent to Will Kent (wkent@luc.edu).

How to Read: Strategies for Focusing and Retaining the Words on a Page

Also offered online, via Adobe Connect Thursday, October 27, 2:30pm – 3:00pm
  ➢ Wednesday, October 26, 3:30pm – 4:00pm, Information Commons 120
Reading habits and styles are changing while academic work continues to require focused attention and long-term retention. Discover effective strategies and solutions to reading dilemmas by attending this workshop. Questions may be sent to Jane Currie (jcurrie@luc.edu).

How to Read: Strategies for Focusing and Retaining the Words on a Page

> Thursday, October 27, 2:30pm – 3:00pm, Online, via Adobe Connect:
> https://connect.luc.edu/library_reading_workshop/

Reading habits and styles are changing while academic work continues to require focused attention and long-term retention. Discover effective strategies and solutions to reading dilemmas by attending this workshop. Questions may be sent to Jane Currie (jcurrie@luc.edu).

Citation Management

> Thursday, October 27th, 3:00pm – 3:30pm, Information Commons 120

Lost in a sea of citations? Are you interested in organizing them so you can easily insert them into your next great research paper? Take charge of your citations and come to this session to learn about RefWorks and Zotero, two citation management programs. Questions may be sent to Will Kent (wkent@luc.edu).

Election Research (CQ Researcher)

> Tuesday, November 1, 4:00pm – 4:30pm, Information Commons 120

Major issues come up in every election, gun control, crime, health care reform, immigration. It's hard to understand the history of these issues without research. CQ researcher consolidates research on political issues to allow better decision making. Questions may be sent to Ben Aldred (baldred@luc.edu).

Election Research (CQ Researcher)

> Friday, November 4, 4:00pm – 4:30pm, Information Commons 120

Major issues come up in every election, gun control, crime, health care reform, immigration. It's hard to understand the history of these issues without research. CQ researcher consolidates research on political issues to allow better decision making. Questions may be sent to Ben Aldred (baldred@luc.edu).

Finding Focus in a Dizzying Day

Also offered online, via Adobe Connect Thursday, November 10, 2:30pm – 3:00pm

> Wednesday, November 9, 3:30pm – 4:00pm, Information Commons 314

With more to think about, read, write, and do than we have hours in the day, it's easy to become overwhelmed. Discover techniques to focus on what matters, prioritize, and use time wisely. This workshop will be a conversation; come, share your experiences, and learn from those of your peers. Questions may be sent to Jane Currie (jcurrie@luc.edu).

Finding Focus in a Dizzying Day

> Thursday, November 10, 2:30pm – 3:00pm, Online, via Adobe Connect:
> https://connect.luc.edu/library_focus_workshop/

With more to think about, read, write, and do than we have hours in the day, it's easy to become overwhelmed. Discover techniques to focus on what matters, prioritize, and use time wisely. This workshop will be a conversation; come, share your experiences, and learn from those of your peers. Questions may be sent to Jane Currie (jcurrie@luc.edu).